Gentlemen, Breaking up Microsoft is no help to those of us who only became PC users because of the ease of Microsofts Versions 3.1 and 95 and 98. The features of Microsoft 98, which I use, work smoothly. Incompatibility will certainly result if you force others to provide the microsoft features which we find so easy to use. I am not worried about the other PC providers not enjoying a so called fair market. This should be a free market and those with the best product ought not to be hamstrung by lawyers and the courts.

Microsoft developed their code. Why should they give it away as some seem to desire. I am a user and I want to continue to purchase my PCs with all the Microsoft features. Warren Piper, Sun City Center, FL.
